Description. Water constantly evaporates from the deeper layers of the skin, an effect known as transepidermal water loss (TEWL). By regulating its water content, skin maintains a dry, easily shed surface as a barrier against pathogens, dirt, or damage, while protecting itself from drying out and becoming brittle and rigid. The ability to retain moisture depends on the lipid bilayer between ...

Black locust, Robinia pseudoacacia. (*photo credit) The Glory of the Black Locust Few trees have as humble a story as does the deciduous black locust (Robinia pseudo-acacia).). This quite prominent tree in this part of North America is not a grand sight most of the year when it takes a back landscape seat to stately oaks and shady maples; locusts are present but overlooked much of the year.

The Account of St. John the Theologian of the Falling Asleep of the Holy Mother of God. As the all-holy glorious mother of God and ever-virgin Mary, as was her wont, was going to the holy tomb of our Lord to burn incense, and bending her holy knees, she was importunate that Christ our God who had been born of her should return to her. And the Jews, seeing her lingering by the divine sepulchre ...

Baking soda can be irritating to many people in any amount, so plain talcum powder or baby powder can be a great substitute. In fact, I often keep a small baby powder with me when I have to leave the house (southeast Texas means you pretty much ALWAYS sweat at some point!) and simply wipe away the moisture and apply a bit of powder to help keep me dry.

Mineral oil is a cheap, petroleum-based filler that cosmetic companies use to mass produce skin care and beauty products. The cells of mineral oil are too large to absorb into our skins' pores, so you are right: science doesn't show there is anything wrong with it, but it also doesn't have a purpose.
