Many treatment options exist for patients who are referred to physical therapy. Physical agents and modalities are often used by your physical therapist to augment your therapy and to help achieve rehab goals. They may be used to decrease pain and inflammation.

Physical Therapy Treatments and Modalities List

Acupuncture is the insertion of fine needles into specific points on the patient to produce a physiologic response. Stimulation of acupuncture points affects the nervous system and can lead to an increase in circulation, decrease in muscle spasm and the release of chemicals known as neurotransmitters and hormones.
